

BP360 POSTING RULES

Support Admin - 2018-03-18 - 0 Comments - in Getting Started

- Try to keep posts informative, the more information you provide, the better we can help. An informative post will also help other people looking for similar information. Try to give as much detail as you can. While we aren't too bothered with replies to posts, try not to just post one-word responses. It's annoying...and we throw bananas for that!
- Try to keep on topic. If you find that something sparks your memory and you need to get it out, post a new topic so that conversation can flow freely on the original topic. Avoid hi-jacking a thread.
- Personal insults, any methods of bullying, hate speech will not be tolerated. We are a community, and everyone is welcome here. You will be warned via an Infraction notice. This is entirely up to the Admin that catches you being naughty. An infraction could limit your ability to create new posts. Too many infractions and you can be banned for several days or indefinitely.
- Freedom of Speech - BP360 is a private website, therefore there is no public right to freedom of speech. Your posting permission on this forum does not constitute as a right, but a privilege. Your posting permissions can be removed at any time at the sole discretion of BP360 Admin/Moderation Team.
